Note these innings in which a batsman reportedly scored 100% of his side's runs off the bat, but in an innings of under 50 (minimum total 20). The first figure is the batsman's total, the next pair of figures are the total runs off the bat together with the all-out total including Extras.

Notes The stand of 270 by Stevens and Walker is mentioned by Gross but is not specifically noted in CA's scorecard, though the match notes indicate that Gross's figure is probably correct.

The stand of 249* by Srivastava and Seth ended when Srivastava retired hurt, and Seth was joined by ND Hirwani. In all, the three-man partnership for the ninth wicket was worth 276*.

This was Seth's only innings in first-class cricket.

The highest-known 10th and last wicket partnerships to win a match are as follows:

|------|------------|----------|------------------|-------------------|-------|---------|-----|--|-----|
| 177* | MS Garnaut | B Mulder | Bayswater-Morley | Midland-Guildford | Perth | 1998/99 | AUS | | 451 |

A winning partnership of 161 for the tenth wicket between LB Pawson and GB Gainsford was recorded for Oundle School against the Machine Gun Corps (Beltham Park, Grantham) in 1918, but as this was a 12-a-side match, the partnership was not for the last wicket. The match scorecard can be found in the 'Near Misses' section of the Major Feats project.*

In addition, GE Tribe (Timperley) took all 19 wickets that fell, for a total of 70 runs, across two separate single-innings matches played between Levenshulme XI and Timperley XI on the same afternoon in 1947. Traynor achieved this feat in Wentworth's third innings, after they had followed on and then been 132 behind on completion of their second innings

No instances have been traced of a bowler taking all 12 wickets in a 13-player innings, or 13 wickets in one of 14 players, but Gross lists 49 instances of a bowler taking All Eleven in an innings in a 12-a-side match. These include the following instances by Test players:

Kersi Meher-Homji records an instance of eight wickets in an over by R Eipeo for Yoogali School v Griffith Convent at Griffith (NSW) in 1938, but he does not list this as an 8 in 8. Research in Trove indicates that R Eipper [sic] took 8 for 1 in this match (v St Patrick's Convent in November 1938), but there is no mention of any feat of 'wickets with consecutive balls'.

The report of the match between Army & Navy XI and Royal Navy Stokers in France 1944 (see page 326) indicates that K Beard took at least 8 wickets, and possibly all 10, with successive deliveries. This seems so doubtful that I am reluctant to include it in the above listing.

Gross lists 26 instances of bowlers taking 7 wickets with consecutive deliveries, and 80 instances of 6 in 6. He also notes that 190 instances of 5 in 5 have been recorded, but does not list them all. The following are instances of 5 in 5 or better by Test cricketers, or other 'big names', as listed by Gross:
